Offering finance is a well-proven sales tool that can entice new prospects, convince browsers to buy and win sales from the competition. It's a great way to increase sales, improve your customer experience and it's easy to do.

In this guide we'll give you our top tips for marketing consumer finance including where and how to promote credit, exclusive finance bundles and going mobile. You can even use our handy checklist to make sure you've got everything covered.

Deko offers great finance solutions 'out of the box' but there's more you can do with the marketing and promotion of retail finance to further increase your sales. You're probably doing some of these things already but we often find there are still relatively simple changes merchants can make to have a huge impact.

TALK ABOUT FINANCE EARLY IN THE BUYING JOURNEY

- 1 Talk about finance in your marketing and advertising so customers choose you instead of your competitors. Buyers actively look for merchants offering alternative payment options so include it in all marketing channels including PPC, display advertising, print or TV.
- 2 Homepage banners ensure online visitors know finance is available as soon as they hit your website, impacting how they browse your site.
- 3 Use physical point of sale material so visitors know finance is available as soon as they walk into your store. This will impact the way they shop.
- 4 Don't forget the call centre! Make sure you're providing a consistent customer experience by offering finance across all your sales channels.
- 5 Use your regular marketing emails to remind customers finance is available and encourage them to buy now.
- 6 Make sure store staff are trained and confident using the system and talking about finance. Understanding that credit helps customers, brings in more revenue and increases order value, can significantly increase in-store take up.
- 7 Interactive finance calculators show customers how much they can borrow, any deposit required and lets them calculate monthly repayments over a given term. They can be used online or in-store and help customers see how much they can afford and if they can increase their budget.
- 8 Create a page on your website about your finance offers to give customers everything they need to know including qualifying criteria and repayment options.

MENTION FINANCE WHILST CUSTOMERS ARE SEARCHING

- 9 Flag products that qualify for finance in your search results. If customers know they could pay with finance they may choose to upgrade their selection and increase their budget.
- 10 Let visitors use 'finance available' as a search criteria. Particularly useful if only some products qualify for credit or if there are lots of options for customers to choose from.

ADD FINANCE DETAILS ONCE A CUSTOMER HAS SELECTED A PRODUCT

- 11 Once a product or service has been selected you can display the specific finance details for that item, helping customers see the impact of spreading the cost.
- 12 Show customers exactly what finance options are available, whether it's interest bearing or interest free and over how many months.

- 13 Use a finance calculator to help customers calculate the impact of different finance offers and deposits on their monthly repayments. It can be pre-populated with details of the product they've selected or even used in-store to help staff explain repayment amounts to customers.

FINANCE AT CHECKOUT

- 14 Add finance as you would any other payment option, so customers know they can either pay now or spread the cost with easy repayments. Consumers will often check what payment methods are accepted before purchasing, so include a Deko finance badge.
- 15 Tell customers how easy it is. Many don't realise the process is completely paperless and that they could receive a lending decision in four seconds or complete the loan application process in as little as three minutes.
- 16 Many customers who make it to the checkout are just browsing or calculating the total value of their purchases. Including a finance option may persuade them to buy now rather than going elsewhere to compare prices.
- 17 Finance purchases commonly have higher order values so create exclusive offers, product bundles or discounted prices for those taking credit or make specific goods available with interest free finance. Calculating the total value of their purchases. Including a finance option may persuade them to buy now rather than going elsewhere to compare prices.

GO MOBILE

- 18 Many e-commerce sites are optimised for mobile but this isn't always the case. 64% of our finance applications are made from a mobile device so make sure your website and payment processes are mobile friendly.

CHECK THE CUSTOMER JOURNEY

- 19 Go through the online purchase process and make sure it works well and is easy for the customer. The same applies in-store, if the internet connection or hardware isn't quick enough the customer experience won't be up to scratch.
